

5-Year Research Priorities of the Department of Pediatric Nursing]

Achieving the goals and mission of the department is accomplished through targeted research based on real problems and the actual needs of society. Therefore, the Department of Pediatric Nursing, placing its educational mission at the forefront and aligning with the values of Ardabil University of Medical Sciences, defines and will pursue its research priorities until the end of 2025 (1405) as follows:

- Challenges of nursing care in pediatric and neonatal wards
- Design, evaluation, and implementation of prevention, care, and rehabilitation programs in the field of emerging/acute diseases and non-communicable/chronic diseases in children
- Family-centered and community-centered care, and modern care based on information technology (computers, mobile, artificial intelligence, virtual networks, etc.)
- Nursing theories and models, and future studies in pediatric nursing
- Palliative care in pediatric nursing
- Education, research, and management in pediatric nursing
- Care of children in line with population policies
- Children and families in emergencies, accidents, and crises
- Ethics, law, and culture in pediatric nursing
- Quality assessment of theoretical and clinical education in units related to pediatric nursing
- Social harms (violence, suicide, addiction, etc.) and pediatric nursing
- Health promotion and healthy lifestyle based on the educational and health needs of children and families
